MONDAY EVENING, SEPT. 21.

A Bowl of Hulled Corn.-Hulled corn is the cheapest of all kinds of food, and it is certainly one of the best. It has been a favorite dish in New England since the days of the Pilgrims, and it is a wonder that it is so seldom found on farmers' tables in the West. Eaten either warm or cold, with milk or with a dressing of cream and sugar, or as it is preferred by all Yankees, with syrup or molasses, it is a "dish fit to set before a king." It is also excellent for a breakfast dish when warmed up in a little fat or butter. The Country Gentleman gives the following recipe for preparing it: Shell a dozen ears of ripe corn; put it in an iron kettle and cover with cold water, put in the corn a bag of two teacupfuls of fresh wood ashes and boil until the corn looks yellow and tastes strong of the alkali, then take out the bag and boil the corn in the lye over an hour; then pour off the lye; add fresh water, and simmer until the corn swells. It the hulls do not then come off by stirring, turn off the water and rub them off with a towel; add more water and simmer for three or four hours, often stirring to keep it from burning; when it swells out and becomes soft and white; add salt to liking; and let all the water simmer away." The use of the potash in preparing this dish, is to dissolve the silica which contains in the hull. This lye water in which the corn is boiled, is excellent to moisten meal for occasional food for hogs, or, if not used for this purpose, may be applied as a manure for the garden."
